What are the best things to write about

CC0/Free-Photos/Pixabay Knowing how to write a college essay is a useful skill for anyone who plans to go to college. Most colleges and universities ask you to submit a writing sample with your application. As a student, you'll also write essays in your courses. Impress your professors with your knowledge and skill by using these great essay writing tips.Prepare to Answer the Question Most college essays ask you to answer a question or synthesize information you learned in class. Review notes you have from lectures, read the recommended texts and make sure you understand the topic. You should refer to these sources in your essay. CC0/lil_foot/Pixabay Plan Your Essay Many students see planning as a waste of time, but it actually saves you time. Take a few minutes to think about the topic and what you want to say about it. You can write an outline, draw a chart or use a graphic organizer to arrange your ideas. This gives you a chance to spot problems in your ideas before you spend time writing out the paragraphs. Choose a Writing Method That Feels Comfortable You might have to type your essay before turning it in, but that doesn't mean you have to write it that way. Some people find it easy to write out their ideas by hand. Others prefer typing in a word processor where they can erase and rewrite as needed. Find the one that works best for you and stick with it. CC0/Free-Photos/Pixabay View It as a Conversation Writing is a form of communication, so think of your essay as a conversation between you and the reader. Think about your response to the source material and the topic. Decide what you want to tell the reader about the topic. Then, stay focused on your response as you write. CC0/StartupStockPhotos/Pixabay Provide the Context in the Introduction If you look at an example of an essay introduction, you'll see that the best essays give the reader a context. Think of how you introduce two people to each other. You share the details you think they will find most interesting. Do this in your essay by stating what it's about and then telling readers what the issue is. CC0/Pexels/Pixabay Explain What Needs to be Explained Sometimes you have to explain concepts or define words to help the reader understand your viewpoint. You also have to explain the reasoning behind your ideas. For example, it's not enough to write that your greatest achievement is running an ultra marathon. You might need to define ultra marathon and explain why finishing the race is such an accomplishment. CC0/StockSnap/Pixabay Answer All the Questions After you finish writing the first draft of your essay, make sure you've answered all the questions you were supposed to answer. For example, essays in compare and contrast format should show the similarities and differences between ideas, objects or events. If you're writing about a significant achievement, describe what you did and how it affected you. CC0/StockSnap/Pixabay Stay Focused as You Write Writing requires concentration. Find a place where you have few distractions and give yourself time to write without interruptions. Don't wait until the night before the essay is due to start working on it. CC0/StartupStockPhotos/Pixabay Read the Essay Aloud to Proofread When you finish writing your essay, read it aloud. You can do this by yourself or ask someone to listen to you read it. You'll notice places where the ideas don't make sense, and your listener can give you feedback about your ideas. CC0/klimkin/Pixabay Avoid Filling the Page with Words A great essay does more than follow an essay layout. It has something to say. Sometimes students panic and write everything they know about a topic or summarize everything in the source material. Your job as a writer is to show why this information is important.
